

PRESS REPORTS

15TH MAY 2015

BY MARIA GREGORIOU

Courtesy of The Cyprus Mail, 13th May 2015

Lanes and courtyards, oh my.

This weekend why not get away and enjoy the picturesque lanes and open courtyards in the village of Lania – which just happens to be one of the country's main wine producing villages.

The group behind the event is the Women of Lania, which has organised such events for the last ten years.

But it is not all about walking around and feeling that you are living in a painting, there will also be music and a raffle at the museum on Sunday.

This year, the Women of Lania have invited Friends For Life to set up their own stall in a courtyard to raise funds for the Anti cancer charity.

The women kindly provide some directions for those who maybe can't read a map and those others of us who are too proud to stop when we are lost and ask for the way to go.

From the motorway in Limassol, take the B8 towards Troodos. After approximately 20 minutes, see the sign to Lania on your right. Drive half a kilometre up the hill. Park at the carpark on your left before you enter the village.

You will know that you are entering into the village by the old fountain from which the villagers would get their drinking water.

Lanes and Courtyards of Lania

Take a walk along the picturesque lanes and visit open courtyards, plus music and a raffle. May 16-17. Lania village, Limassol. 11am-7pm. Tel: 25-432404

Click here to view the original article.

<http://cyprus-mail.com/2015/05/13/lanes-and-courtyards-oh-my/>